FOREWORD

PROFESSOR DAVID MBA,
PRO VICE-CHANCELLOR RESEARCH & ENTERPRISE

I am pleased to introduce the first report on The East Midlands Top 500 Companies (EM Top 500) on behalf of De Montfort University. The EM Top 500 is a new index which celebrates the business success of the East Midlands as a region with a strong, diverse and resilient range of firms.

Planned before the COVID-19 pandemic, the index shows the underlying business and economic strengths of the region and will contribute to its future regeneration as part of a regional partnership for sharing business intelligence, led by East Midlands Chamber.

The Top 500 team brought together leading researchers from the Business Schools at De Montfort, Derby and Nottingham Trent Universities, building on the annual Derbyshire, Leicestershire and Nottinghamshire 'Top 200 Companies'.

We value their contributions as much as the business leadership from East Midlands Chamber and the excellent online coverage through 'Business Live' from Reach plc.

We look forward to the EM Top 500 becoming an annual highlight of the East Midlands business calendar, helping to promote the region and make it ever more resilient, competitive and successful.

SCOTT KNOWLES,
CHIEF EXECUTIVE, EAST MIDLANDS CHAMBER
(DERBYSHIRE, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE, LEICESTERSHIRE)

It's long been recognised that the East Midlands is the engine room of the UK's economy. We are a manufacturing powerhouse, a hotbed of innovation and advanced technology and a logistics hub through which trade flows in all directions, over borders and into the global marketplace.

Sometimes, though, we don't shout about what we've got here loud enough, or with a united voice.

We should. The East Midlands has got an amazing story to tell of which everyone living or working here should be proud.

The East Midlands Top 500 sets this out, in vivid detail, showing the contribution our businesses make to UK Plc. This new index includes an impressive roster of organisations big and small.

It highlights the strength in depth of the regional business community, with many of the UK's best-known employers calling the East Midlands home.

When you look down the list, it becomes clear that it's not just the bigger, more high-profile businesses that make our economy tick. There are a myriad smaller but no less important firms that provide much of the employment, skills and innovation that this region is famed for.

INTRODUCTION: WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE TOP 500?

The East Midlands Top 500 Companies 2020 is a new index which celebrates the business success of the East Midlands as a region with a remarkably strong, diverse and resilient range of firms.

For the first time we can see the range and strength of our leading businesses in the East Midlands, in the 'Three Counties' of Derbyshire, Leicestershire and Nottinghamshire areas covered by the East Midlands Chamber. These businesses are at the heart of the East Midlands economy and are high on the list of those most likely to drive growth and create jobs in the future. Their prosperity affects not only their workforces, supply chains and the communities around them, but ultimately everyone in the region.

The index is part of a proposed regional approach for sharing business intelligence to support economic development across the region, led by East Midlands Chamber. The East Midlands has lacked a single organisation which brings together the economic and business intelligence for the region. This puts the East Midlands at a disadvantage with city-regional unified authorities, such as the West Midlands, which are able to integrate shared intelligence much more effectively, for example via the Chambers' network, Black Country Economic Intelligence Unit and WM-REDI institute.

Whilst the East Midlands is a partner in the Midlands Engine Economic Observatory, it also needs to develop its own capacity for business intelligence which can inform policymakers such as Government agencies, the Local Enterprise Partnerships, the All-Party Parliamentary Group of East Midlands MPs, City and County authorities, the East Midlands Development Corporation, as well as individual businesses and communities.

The Index builds on the Derbyshire, Leicestershire and Nottinghamshire 'Top 200 Companies', featured annually in the Leicester Mercury, Derby Telegraph and Nottingham Post, as well as on the national business website Business Live. It will help to promote the region and make it more successful. Everyone can join the fanbase of people striving to make the East Midlands ever more resilient and competitive at this crucial time.

WHY NOW?

The Index was planned in late 2019, when business disruption from Brexit was envisaged but Coronavirus was unheard of. Since March 2020, the effects of the COVID-19 lockdown have been deeply felt across the region, and are affecting many companies, their employees and suppliers. Understanding the business baseline for economic recovery and future resilience is of crucial importance and the Index is one potentially important dataset within this

The East Midlands Top 500 team is a partnership which includes researchers from De Montfort University Leicester (DMU): Dr Rachel English, Professor David Rae and doctoral researchers Deji Olagboye and Ngozi Eneh Ojo; University of Derby: Alexandra Charles, Professor Marc Cowling; Nottingham Trent University: Dr Will Rossiter; working with business partners Reach Media and East Midlands Chamber.

Report edited by Professor David Rae, Centre for Enterprise & Innovation, Leicester Castle Business School, De Montfort University, Leicester.

METHOD: HOW IS THE TOP 500 COMPILED?

The Top 500 is based on historic data from Companies House accounts submitted between July 2017 and June 2018. These are accessed from the Financial Analysis Made Easy FAME database supplied by Bureau Van Dijk. This is supplemented from other publicly available sources of business information where necessary.

The data is around two years old, so it is historic, not current. That does not mean it is 'out of date'. The index represents the strength and diversity of firms based in the East Midlands. The Top 500 Index provides a continuing baseline for comparison in future years, since it comprises data predating the effects of Brexit and COVID-19. This will be updated yearly.

It includes companies with their registered offices located in Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire and Leicestershire. All these businesses have already been included in the 'Top 200 Companies' 2019 for Derbyshire, Leicestershire and Nottinghamshire, featured in the 'Business Live' coverage by Reach Media.

It excludes public sector organisations, and companies with operations in the East Midlands who are subsidiaries or who have their registered offices elsewhere. Such organisations also include major employers, but their ownership, governance and strategic decision-making is more likely to be based outside the region.

Information gathered for the index includes annual turnover and the number of employees. Standard Industrial Classifications (SIC codes) have been added to the full dataset which allows detailed sectoral analysis.

To be included in the Top 500, companies must be active, not dormant or in receivership. They must also have reported accounts for 2017 or 2018. This takes account of differences in the timing of financial reporting by companies. Finally, companies must have a registered office in the East Midlands counties of Derbyshire, Leicestershire or Nottinghamshire and report their accounts locally. A few companies have postcodes that appear to be outside the region and these are checked to ensure their actual location is within the three counties.

The list of organisations is ranked by annual turnover in the reporting period. There are other measures of company performance that could be used in a ranking of this kind but turnover is preferred to provide consistency with previous years and because it is a simple measure of company scale and significance that can be tracked over time.

The final step in the process is to deal with the complexity of ownership structures in the modern corporate world. The approach is to use consolidated group accounts where the ultimate owners of companies are based in the East Midlands counties of Derbyshire, Leicestershire or Nottinghamshire. If an ultimate owner is not based locally, but a subsidiary is and reports independent accounts locally, this may be included. The complexity of ownership structures in large groups requires judgements to be made during this process.

The index introduces a regional approach to sharing business intelligence across the East Midlands to support future economic development, between East Midlands Chamber, the participating universities, and Reach Media.

WHO IS IN THE TOP 500?

The East Midlands' largest businesses in the region include leading international brand names as well as lesser-known, but economically significant organisations. Industries span retail, healthcare, advanced manufacturing, automotive, and housebuilding.

The Top 10 companies are led by Boots as an internationally-renowned brand in pharmacy-led health and beauty retail, owned by Walgreens Boots Alliance. Boots, Next and Sports Direct show the strength of the retail sector in the index, with other major retailers including Wilko and Dunelm also in the Top 20.

Three of the companies are in the automotive sector: Toyota Motor Manufacturing, with Sytner group and Pendragon as major vehicle distributors, with Pentagon and Motorpoint also in the Top 20. The automotive sector is a major power in the regional economy.

Advanced manufacturing is led by Rolls-Royce, now restructuring its aviation business worldwide in response to the pandemic. Ecobat Technologies produce and recycle lead for batteries, essential in the shift to electrical technologies. Steris Ltd is the UK arm of the Steris Corporation, providing essential healthcare, infection prevention and sterilisation products which are vital in the fight against COVID-19. Major food manufacturers Greencore and Samworth Brothers are in the Top 30, which also includes trainmaker Bombardier and Caterpillar UK in civil engineering plant manufacturing.

The housing and property sector includes major companies, led by Barratt Developments, with both Bloor Investments and Bowmer and Kirkland in the Top 20.

The Top 10 businesses collectively had sales turnover of just under £40 billion (£39,245 million) and employed over 145,000 people in 2017-18.

The 500 companies in the index had a combined turnover of just under £93 billion (£92,986,950k) and employed almost 455,000 people. Those figures will have changed since 2018 and of course some have reduced since February 2020. These changes will be tracked in future.

BOOTS UK LTD

Boots is the leading East Midlands Top 500 Company by turnover, based on its 2017 performance. As a long-established retail brand, Boots leads the retail pharmacy international division of owning group Walgreens Boots Alliance, the first global pharmacy-led, health and wellbeing enterprise. With staffing of around 40,000 and 2,465 retail outlets in the United Kingdom, these form over half of the Boots 4,605 total outlets across eight countries.

As the region's leading retailer, Boots demonstrated its commitment to operating a socially responsible business in the highly challenging current COVID-19 pandemic. Boots championed initiatives to support government efforts to provide free access to learning for health care-workers to upgrade their skills in patient care and medication and provided a safe haven to support victims of domestic abuse.

Boots was recently named winner of the Responsible Business of the Year Award, and has consistently delivered medicines and needed support to care homes daily for more than 30 years.

However its retail sales dropped by 48% during the pandemic and it has announced a major restructuring plan which will reduce its workforce by more than 4,000 jobs, affecting its Nottingham offices, retail roles, and closing 48 Boots Opticians stores.

BARRATT DEVELOPMENTS PLC

Founded by Lawrie Barratt in 1953, Barratt Developments is the UK's largest housebuilder and leads the industry. The company's three consumer brands, Barratt Homes, David Wilson and Barratt London cover six regions and 27 operating divisions providing wide geographic reach. 17,856 homes were completed in 2018 including joint ventures. Turnover of £4875m and profit before tax of £835.5m grew steadily and increased further in 2019, against buoyant housing demand and a healthy balance sheet.

Barratt's continued success is attributed to targeted land buying and planning; outstanding house design; construction excellence, innovation and efficiency; effective sales and marketing combining to produce industry-leading customer satisfaction. Environmental and socially responsible policies are important business values. Barratt operates one of the shortest land banks in the industry with a financially efficient, fast build and sell model. It achieved the maximum five-star rating in the National Home Builders Federation customer satisfaction survey for the 10th year running, the only major national housebuilder to achieve this.

As an industry-leading employer and training organisation, Barratt employs over 6,000 people, supporting over 45,000 industry jobs, and 1,150 recruits who attend a five-star training delivered by Barratt Academy.

To support the fight against COVID-19, the company contributed £100,000 to supported NHS Charities and donated £50,000 to The Sun's 'Who Cares Wins Appeal'. Their construction sites closed in response to the virus and began a controlled and phased return from 11 May.

TOYOTA

It was in 1989 that Japanese car manufacturing giant Toyota announced plans to establish its first European factory at Burnaston, near Derby – and in December that year it established Toyota Motor Manufacturing (UK).

But it was not until 1992 that the first Burnaston-built car rolled off the production line. Today, the factory manufactures the all-new Corolla hatchback and Touring Sports, with most of its output exported to mainland Europe. The majority of the cars manufactured at Burnaston are hybrids, running on a combination of petrol and electricity. The powertrains are manufactured at Toyota's engine-making plant at Deeside, in North Wales. Both Deeside and Burnaston represent a total investment by Toyota of £2.75 billion.

Whilst the Toyota plant in Burnaston ceased production on March 18 2020 because of the COVID-19 pandemic, production resumed on 26 May after introducing extensive health and safety measures to protect the workforce.

BUSINESS SECTORS

WHAT ARE THE MAIN INDUSTRY SECTORS?

The Top 10 East Midlands businesses show the balance of retail, advanced manufacturing, health, housing and automotive sectors. Looking the entire Top 500 companies, these sectors remain at the core of the economy, but others are also evident. The report looks firstly at the industrial sectors including manufacturing, construction, business services, transport and logistics. It then explores at customer-facing sectors, which consumers interact with directly, including retail, healthcare, hospitality, leisure and tourism.

KEY INDUSTRY SECTORS

A sectoral analysis of the Top 500 shows it is distributed across 41 industrial sectors. This can be narrowed down further by aggregating all the manufacturing into one sector grouping. There is a also a range of business services which have been grouped together. Finally there is a diverse group of 'other sectors' with 52 companies in total.

The largest sector by value of sales is manufacturing, aggregated (£24.2bn), followed by retail (£19.7bn) as the largest employer, automotive trade (£15.6bn), business services (£14.8bn) construction (£10bn), and wholesale (£5.4bn). Taking retail and wholesale together is valued at £25.1bn, slightly larger than manufacturing.

East Midlands Top 500: Business sectors by % of companies

This shows the broad base and diversity of the business sectors in the region as well as the significant areas of concentration.

The high level of manufacturing activity across these sectors is a strength in high value-added activity, exporting and supporting supply-chains. However, the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic is being felt by even the largest companies in aerospace, such as Rolls-Royce and Gardner Aerospace. Some manufacturers have found increased demand opportunities in the period, such as in supplying PPE, sterilants and protective screens for organisations.

Looking at the food and drink manufacturing sector, this includes 21 of the Top 500, employing over 24,000 people, with a value over £4bn. There are both major producers, such as Greencore and Samworth Brothers, and well-known names including Pukka Pies, Delifrance, and Swizzells Matlow, known for their confectionery. Food businesses have had to make many changes in their working practices, supply chains and customer relations. Overall, the food and drink sector adapts quickly to changes such as major reductions in prepared sandwiches and lunches, and demand recovers over time.

The automotive sector in the region includes several large dealerships, such as Sytner Group, Motorpoint, Pentagon and Pendragon. Added to these is the vehicle manufacturing sector, led by Toyota and including the motorcycle industry. Combined, this sector includes 47 businesses with 35,000 workers and a turnover over £18bn. This sector is more economically significant in the region than was been previously known. It is vulnerable to changes in demand, to possible trade agreement disruption resulting from Brexit, and to vehicle technology innovation, especially electric, and, in future, autonomous vehicles. Sales of motor vehicles in April were 90% down and stocks of unsold vehicles in the region are known to be high.

Business services are also more significant within the region than was previously apparent. The 131 companies across a range of professional, industrial and specialist service sectors employ just under 98,000 people with sales of almost £15bn. Whilst automation and Artificial Intelligence are likely to affect employment in future, there is growth potential for companies using technology to innovate effectively and improve competitiveness in business services.

The construction sector includes major housebuilders such as Barratt and Bloor, and many other specialist companies. The sector also drives important supply chains in architecture, aggregates, construction materials and other services. Whilst construction projects are resuming and demand for homes remains strong, lbstock is reducing its brick-making capacity and cutting jobs.

It is important to note that these figures only record the Top 500 companies' activities in these sectors, and that both smaller firms and divisions of companies based outside the region contribute significantly within many sectors. An example is the logistics and distribution sector, which is economically significant growing but with relatively few major companies based within the region, HLD Holdings (Pall-Ex) being a significant exception.

This section looks at customer-facing sectors, which consumers interact with directly, including retail, healthcare, hospitality, leisure and tourism. Retail and wholesale together are valued at £25.1bn with 178,000 employees.

The large retail base has been vulnerable to the COVID-19 pandemic, with many stores closed during the lockdown, and there is concern that trading and employment may not return quickly, or to previous levels following the resumption of trading on 15 June. Major retail chains include Boots, and Wilko, who continued trading. But Sports Direct, NEXT, Dunelm and many others had to close. Their ability to respond and attract customers back to their stores and online will be crucial for their recovery.

Retail is the sector generating the highest employment, 150,000 people, so many jobs depend on this.

Businesses involved in the leisure, hospitality and tourism sectors also experienced complete shutdown during Spring 2020, with continuing restrictions on their activities. These include the iconic football clubs Leicester City and Derby County. Pub and restaurant chains such as Everards and Le Bistrot Pierre, which was sold out of administration, have been severely affected.

The Healthcare sector within the region is significant and touches everyone, from residential and social care to advanced research and specialist services. This is a sector with further potential to grow in value and impact in the future.

GRENCORE

Greencore is a leading manufacturer of convenience food, based in North Derbyshire, led by Irish CEO Patrick Coveney. The company was set up in 1991 following the privatisation of the former state-owned Irish Sugar, moving into convenience foods in 2001 and exiting the sugar business in 2006. Greencore's acquisition strategy triggered tremendous growth in the UK before entering the US market in 2008, selling this operation on 2018. In 2011, it switched its primary listing from the Irish Stock Exchange to London. Group revenue of £1.5bn and increased revenue growth of 1.6% over 2019 shows Greencore's track record of performance with strong margins and investor returns.

Greencore is the market leader in the majority of its categories, with 2,300 products across 20 categories in 40 locations across the UK, the food giant delivers 7,500 consignments direct to stores daily.

Greencore's competitive edge stems from its passion for great food, deep customer relations, leadership in 'food-to-go', innovation and technology networks. Its teams and capabilities position Greencore for future growth in the fast-changing UK convenience food sector.

Greencore managed the challenges of the Covid-19 pandemic by focusing on three priorities of safety, feeding the UK, and protecting the business. These factors trigger support for local charities such as Fairshare and food donations to the NHS. During a period of unprecedented uncertainty, sales in its 'food to go' slumped by 70% after the lockdown started, leading to three of its factories closing and a third of employees being furloughed. Greencore is committed to providing ethically fresh, authentic, locally sourced and sustainably packaged products.

The company won several awards in March 2020, including industry food packaging, health and safety award. As workers return to work and sales recover, Greencore celebrates its food heroes on social media as they feed the nation.

BOWMER AND KIRKLAND LIMITED

Founded as a partnership in 1923 by Alfred Bowmer and Robert William Kirkland, Bowmer and Kirkland is one of the most financially secure privately-owned companies in the UK construction sector. The company handles key projects from £1m to more than £130m across its construction, construction related services and homeland security subsidiaries. Turnover of £938 million, group profit before tax of £54.5 million and 9% increase in group net assets provide Bowmer and Kirkland with its strong fiscal base. Although the Bowmer connection ended in 1968, the 25 companies in the group have a Board including the fourth generation of the Kirkland family.

One of the main factors that enabled such transformative growth is Bowmer and Kirkland's commitment to client satisfaction, with this culture of connection deeply entrenched in its values and roots as a family owned business. This commitment drives the company's 1,400 staff providing a wide range of specialized services across its ten market sectors.

With a regional construction team quick to adapt to changing market and client requirement, 63% of the £3 billion secured in projects over the past five years came from repeat orders by satisfied clients. Major projects include those for JCB, NEXT, the University of Northampton, and the Derbyshire Constabulary and Fire Service HQ. Its balanced turnover is resilient, not being dependent on any one sector or individual client.

NEXT PLC

Driven by the desire to be the customers' first choice destination for clothing and homeware, NEXT was renamed from J Hepworth & Son, Gentleman's Tailors in 1986. Since then it has blazed a trail of well-designed, excellent quality clothing and homeware via stores, NEXT Directory and online retailing. NEXT trades in store in 16 countries online in more than 70 countries worldwide, including the fashion brands, LIPSY and LABEL.

NEXT experienced several years of successful sales growth with £4bn sales in 2017-18 and 2019 trading showed sales of almost £4.4 billion and profits over £728 million. But the COVID-19 lockdown led to both the 500 stores and online retail shutting down during March.

As a major PLC, NEXT focused on securing its core viability and solvency as well as customer and staff wellbeing. It is arranging sale and leaseback arrangements for its Leicestershire head office and warehouses.

NEXT planned for a worst-case scenario of a three-month company shutdown, anticipating up to 25% loss in sales, a £1 billion drop in turnover and pre-tax profits decrease of up to 10-fold to £55 million in 2020. The business has £1.6 billion worth of cash resources potentially available to sustain it.

Online sales resumed in April and stores progressively reopening from June with comprehensive measures in place for customer and staff safety.

Alert to opportunities, NEXT will launch an innovative new brand, The Beauty Hall, as a 'new force in beauty retailing', using redundant space from other retailers such as Debenhams. This will focus on premium retail locations and expand the NEXT makeup, perfume and skincare brands. Initially, Reading, Birmingham's Bullring and Grand Central, Glasgow and Highcross in Leicester are planned.

ACESO HEALTHCARE GROUP LTD

BUSINESS RESILIENCE

RECOVERY FROM COVID-19 PANDEMIC

This section looks at business resilience and how companies in the Top 500 are starting to bounce back from the pandemic.

The East Midlands Top 500 Businesses are a major resource for regeneration and future growth in the region. In Summer 2020 all businesses face massive economic and social challenges resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic and lockdown. These are having huge effects on almost every business. Yet already there are signs of how businesses are responding and preparing for the future.

Immediately, for many businesses the imperative is survival. In some cases, investment plans are being cut back which may constrain future growth. For businesses with a focus on conserving cash with lower revenues, high costs and growing debt, this is understandable. Businesses are working hard on cost reduction and lean thinking.

Sadly, job losses over the coming months as furlough schemes end, are a growing reality. How can these jobs be replaced? Future job creation will be vital, and ideally these will be high productivity, high value jobs, making optimal uses of technology.

SO HOW DO WE GET BACK TO GROWTH?

In recent months, online business activity has boomed, with meetings, trading, retail, learning and many other activities in the virtual space replacing face-face. Is this the new normal? Many activities will not revert quickly or at all to how they used to do business, but will expand by using new and online channels.

Innovation in products, services and customer experience is the key. Resourceful businesses are finding new ways to create value for their customers, pivoting from moribund channels to new opportunities such as personalised services and home delivery. Some clothing and other manufacturing firms are reshoring operations back to the UK. There are examples of businesses such as NEXT and Leicester City FC making strategic investments for future growth.

Businesses with high-demand products and services have adapted to working with limited resources, with examples such as perspex shielding for customer service facilities, PPE and anti-infection production. Many also stepped up to support their communities and key workers in imaginative and caring ways.

Our businesses are already starting to bounce back and recover. Hard choices are being made, even in the very biggest and best, such as Rolls-Royce, to adapt to future conditions. The Top 500 will see rising, and possibly falling stars, as well as new entrants in coming years.

RETAIL STORES REOPENED

The reopening of 'non-essential' retail stores from 15 June was welcome news for the East Midlands retail businesses, with 28 businesses employing over 150,000 nationwide. Whilst some such as Boots and Wilko remained open, other major businesses were keen to take advantage of pent-up demand. NEXT phased reopening of its chain of 150 stores. Other home and fashion businesses, including Dunelm and Joules, were keen to resume trading. Sports Direct as a major retail group heavily invested in House of Fraser as well as the core sportswear brands, aimed to make up lost business.

Whilst High Streets and retail centres reported brisk trading at the start, over half of shoppers remaining wary of resuming face-face contact and social distancing also limited sales capacity. With gloomy economic news about a prolonged recovery, continuing job losses in the High Street sector are likely as online sales grow.

DEMAND IN PERSONAL PROTECTION AND INFECTION CONTROL

East Midlands businesses providing all aspects of protection against COVID-19 were positioned for healthy sales during the pandemic. Steris Ltd is a worldwide supplier of infection control solutions and other products vital to combat the virus.

Health and residential care providers have been deeply affected by the pandemic. These include MHA (Methodist Housing Association) which featured on BBC Newsnight to relate their experience in managing the pandemic in their care homes, and Heathcotes Group which runs 72 residential care facilities with person-centred care for adults.

Businesses able to provide physical protection have seen strong demand. Oadby Plastics, UK's leading independent plastics supplier, saw demand for acrylic and other materials for protection screens in retail and customer-facing applications as well as face visors, rise strongly. This led them to introduce new systems to enable them to respond efficiently and safely to this demand.

MOTOR VEHICLE SALES

The East Midlands is home to 40 major vehicle dealerships, employing over 30,000 people, and including famous names such as Sytner Group (BMW), Pendragon, Pentagon and Motorpoint, as well as a number of specialist suppliers. With reopening of salesrooms from 1 June, social distancing was in place to protect customers and staff. Vehicle sales fell by 90% during the lockdown, with a record number of unsold vehicles in stock nationally and many held in the region. Dealers are keen to meet pent-up demand for new cars, and with automotive production also starting up, there will be attractive deals on offer, whilst businesses and individuals may choose to defer purchases. With the industry facing a shift towards hybrid and electric vehicles, it will be interesting to see how dealerships cope with a national economic slowdown and technology changes.

EAST MIDLANDS TOP 500 HOSTS FIRST VIRTUAL ROUND TABLE

East Midlands Top 500 hosted a 'virtual roundtable' in place of the planned in-person business event. This was held on Tuesday June 16, 2020, comprising a panel of industry stakeholders and senior executives from among the region's leading organisations. The event was hosted by Alistair Houghton, Editor of Business Live, Reach PLC, and included as panelists:

Scott Knowles, CEO, East Midlands Chamber of Commerce; Richard Brooke, Regional Director, Barratt Homes; Doug Ryan, Director, Mattioli Woods Plc and Professor David Rae, Director of the Centre for Enterprise and Innovation, DMU.

The panel discussion centred on the strengths, diversity, identity of the East Midlands, the relevance of the Top 500 Index to the region's promotion, and the context of the COVID19 pandemic and beyond for the regional economy.

The top five insights from the roundtable were:

Panel members felt that The East Midlands Top 500 business index showcased an impressive cross-section of companies revealed the diversity and strength of the East Midland economy. It created insights into the richness of the business base and future growth potential existing in strategic sectors such as information technology, engineering and advanced manufacturing, healthcare and business services. There are high levels of technology-based businesses, including little-known names doing remarkable work.

Since the Top 500 reveals the region's strength, talent, productive capacity and potential, it is useful in building the region's identity. Combining the County 'Top 200' into a regional index was welcomed. The panel debated how best to use the index as an opportunity to promote the region by showcasing its industries. The region 'makes more stuff than anyone else'.

It shows what the region has to offer with good jobs in well-managed businesses and by attracting talented people and also new businesses to areas with high quality of life.

Currently the East Midlands receives the lowest level of public investment in a number of areas including economic affairs; transport and rail specifically; research and development; and the third lowest total of public expenditure on services per head of all English regions. Whilst businesses have been investing, the government and public sector has not matched this. The index invites comparison and can be an important tool in lobbying and attracting quality investment for economic regeneration. It has won inward investment but needs to connect with better links to the rest of the country.

All the panelists acknowledged the current turbulence in the business environment resulting from COVID- 19 pandemic. They also noted the strengths of quality of management, skilled workforces, depth of resilience and presence of strong institutions including local authorities, colleges and universities which were helping the region to cope and to support the NHS, care and voluntary sectors.

In relation to business resilience, very few contemplated returning to 'normal life' as before the pandemic. One third of business leaders had found the lockdown 'catastrophic' for their businesses. There had been huge impact on sales, cashflow, supply chains and of course employees on furlough or facing possible redundancy. More positively, all forms of online activity had increased hugely, including innovative customer-facing sales activities, diversification away from inactive markets, and finding new opportunities and channels to market. For businesses to thrive in adverse and unpredictable conditions, they must rethink their business strategy, to use effective management and practical creativity to find new ways of adding value and selling to customers, using digital technologies.

ROLLS-ROYCE

Rolls-Royce is Derby's largest private sector employer with around 12,000 staff working in the city. Two Rolls-Royce businesses are located in Derby. Its Civil Aerospace division designs, develops, tests and manufactures the Trent family of aero engines, which are supplied to airline customers all over the globe. Meanwhile, the firm's Defence division manufactures nuclear power plants for Royal Navy submarines. Rolls-Royce has been in Derby for over 100 years, beginning by making the eponymous cars before switching to aero engine production. Today, the Civil Aerospace business makes up the largest proportion of the Rolls-Royce Group.

However, the Civil Aerospace business has been severely affected in recent months by the impact of the pandemic on the airline sector. It announced a plan to reorganise this section of the business and reduce costs by making 9000 staff redundant, which it expects to save £1.3bn annually. Around 3000 job losses are expected in the UK, with 1500 to go in the East Midlands region during 2020 and with knock-on effects on its supply chain companies.

Rolls-Royce is aiming for net-zero carbon emissions worldwide by 2050 and plans to expand its research and development and product innovation in clean energy and propulsion over this period through hybrid electric, lower carbon alternative fuels and engine efficiency. Target sectors include aviation, shipping, rail, and power generation.

LEICESTER CITY FOOTBALL CLUB

Leicester City Football Club (F.C) has an illustrious history in English football spanning 135 years. From the first match in 1884 as Leicester Fosse, its rebirth as Leicester City Football Club in 1919, to being crowned English champions of the Premier League for the first time ever in 2016.

The club has overcome many challenges along the way. In 2002, the new Walker's Stadium became the home of Leicester City Football Club. A period of relegation from Division One and administration followed by a takeover in 2007 preceded its acquisition by Thai-based consortium Asian Football Investments (AFI), led by King Power's Khun Vichai Srivaddhanaprabha, in 2010. This marked a turnaround in their fortunes and in 2014 they won the English Football league Championship. The tragic death of chairman Vichai Srivaddhanaprabha in a helicopter crash outside the ground in October 2018 shook the club and the city. However his son Aiyawatt Srivaddhanaprabha succeeded him as Chair and management of the club continues to be highly successful.

Leicester City FC responded effectively to the COVID-19 lockdown since professional football was suspended in England, at which stage they were 3rd in the Premier League. During the lockdown, training continued and supporters could obtain ticket refunds or donate to the Vichai Srivaddhanaprabha Foundation, with over £80,000 donated to the Leicester Royal Infirmary for the refurbishment of the Kinmonth Unit for head and neck injuries. Playing resumed from 20 June with an intensive series of 12 matches through to July 26. They finished in 3rd place in the interrupted Premier League 2019-20 season.

Leicester City FC are continuing their major investment in the club's future plans. Their new training ground in Seagrave opened in June with an investment of £13 million in the 180 acre site at Seagrave. Their plans to increase capacity at the King Power Stadium in Leicester, adding up to 30% to its capacity to around 42,000 seats, continue. This is alongside the major investments in the team itself.

FUTURE PROSPECTS

THE EAST MIDLANDS ECONOMY IN 2020-21

The pandemic and lockdown have had massive effects on the East Midlands economy in a short period from March to June 2020, such that predictions and strategies which predate it may have less validity now. GDP in Quarter 2 of 2020 (April-June) fell by 20% and business confidence remains exceptionally low as a result of the closed economy and its after effects.

There is extensive analysis and forecasting of the timing and nature of the recovery from the pandemic. Members of the Top 500 companies will play a significant role in creating this, though a number have been seriously affected. Analysis by the Centre for Cities and DMU suggests that aviation, automotive manufacturing, travel and tourism, and creative and cultural sectors are highly vulnerable, and the region has seen the effects of this. Wholesale, retail, construction and passenger transport are seen as vulnerable, and again this pattern is apparent in the region. However, health businesses, logistics, ICT and professional services sectors may anticipate higher demand.

EMPLOYMENT, INVESTMENT AND INNOVATION

Despite this unprecedented and exceptionally serious position, companies, industries and communities are planning their future strategies in a post-pandemic world. There is a strategic vision from Rolls-Royce to reposition itself in the clean energy and propulsion markets, for example, and there will be major changes in other sectors. These require strategic thinking, innovation and significant investments to succeed. This in turn requires confidence in the future outlook on markets and the economy. There continue to be major uncertainties regarding the UK trading relationship with the EU which affects the automotive sector and others. Retailing has been hugely affected and the clear trend is towards continued growth in online shopping. Retailers with many physical stores will need to adjust to this, and a reduction in the numbers employed in the retail sector seems likely.

BETTER BUSINESS INTELLIGENCE

The East Midlands as a region needs to make more effective use of business intelligence to support future economic growth, and the Top 500 partners will continue to work across key organisations in the region to achieve this.

As noted, historic data may well not be a reliable guide to the future. There is rapid change in the business and economic landscape affecting nearly every business. Factors such as firms' ability to respond to changing market conditions; the ability to innovate quickly and effectively; and resilience to ride out changes are all vital.

More analysis can be done on the data, including comparison with the recently published Midlands Engine Independent Economic Review. It will be useful to compare the West and East Midlands economies and explore productivity issues which are central to the region's economic competitiveness. It is also interesting to compare this index with others, such as the Grant Thornton East Midlands Top 200, which tracks profit growth, and BDO Midlands Growth reports of the top 20 companies in each county. These show fast-growing smaller companies as well as some companies in this index.

EM TOP 500 2021

The EM Top 500 team aim to report the Top 500 businesses in 2021, following the county-based Top 200 awards. Future changes in the composition of the Top 500, and firm growth, shrinkage, entries and exits from the index will be tracked annually.

Questions for the future

Which companies and sectors will be able to resume growth most effectively?

How will businesses respond to the opportunities and challenges beyond 2020?

Who will be the growth-oriented new entrants to the Top 500?

How will employees, communities and supply chains adapt to businesses and sectors which decline?
